Gladioli are Easy to Grow

Any good garden soil is suitable for gladioli although they do like a sandy loam best. In preparing the soil follow only such methods as you would give a fine crop of garden vegetables. However, you will be rewarded for any special care given them in the way of cultivating, fertilizing and watering.

It should be remembered that Gladioli enjoy sunshine and should not be planted in very shady places. Plant in rows, beds, borders, among shrubbery, roses, other flowers, etc., or in separate groups.

Planting should begin any time after early garden-making, followed by successive plantings at say ten-day intervals until early July. Set the bulbs four inches deep and from four to eight inches apart. The very finest blooms come from the earliest and the latest plantings. These gladioli have the opportunity of coming into flower when the days are somewhat cooler and they really make much nicer flowers than in the terrific hot summer days.

Complete cultural instructions including information on insect and disease control will be included with each order. You will find this information very much worthwhile for it tells you just how to care for your bulbs throughout the entire year, including the harvesting and storing of the bulbs so you will have fine gladioli for the next season.

*New Gladioli
by Kunderd Inc.*

The selection of a new gladiolus is not something that just happens. Plans were laid for that new variety years in advance. It has had to meet the most exacting tests. Thousands of crosses are made annually and the seed planted the following Spring. Then it takes several years before these little seedlings reward us with blooms. It is here that expert judgment is needed to pass an opinion on the seedlings in flower. From an entire season's crop of new seedlings scarcely a hundred or two will get by the first season. For several years after this, they are judged and rejudged until final selections are made. Only a very few which pass the gruelling tests will ever be considered worthy of becoming a new variety. At Goshen, we devote about ten acres of ground exclusively to our Trial Gardens from which come all these lovely new Kunderd Gladioli.

DESCRIPTIONS OF NEW VARIETIES FOR 1937

LA LAVANDE

This grand new lavender is certain to become exceedingly popular. It has every point of a fine gladiolus, heavy texture, excellent keeper, good placement on spike, wonderful grower, producing tall spikes with six to seven fine round-shaped florets wide open on spike. Half opening buds have same graceful lines and shape as unfolding rose buds. Excellent for cutting. The color is a most beautiful lavender, blushed slightly pink. The throat has a very pleasing appearance of white turning to a silvery white. You will see a great many blooms of this variety at the flower shows in the near future and right up among the prize winners, too, for it will rank with the very finest of the lavenders. Stock is very limited and we are not able to offer any small size bulbs at all this year.

PINK MONARCH

Here is a new, slightly ruffled gladiolus of unusual beauty. A gorgeous shade of pink blending to deep rose in the throat, with maroon-red median lines on lower petals. Extending outward from the throat on upper central petal the color is silvery white, blending into the rose-pink. There is a narrow border of white surrounding the entire floret. The entire color effect of this spike is most unusual and the perfect blending of the colors makes it outstanding in every way. Four to six good sized florets open. It is most striking when placed in the home under artificial light. When used for basket work or the tips in bowls, it creates a most favorable impression

OUS Mixtures

Endless Array of Gorgeous Colors

A WORD ABOUT OUR MIXTURES

Kunderd Gladiolus Mixtures are not a stock proposition made up especially for orders from surplus varieties. Instead ours are all grown in mixture form in our fields. The past season we devoted approximately twenty acres exclusively to growing mixtures.

Constant improvement is made in our mixtures as many new kinds are added each year. There are thousands of varieties being grown in these mixtures and they present a very lovely picture with their exquisite blending of colors. Being field grown mixtures, we, of course, cannot pick out certain colors, so if you are interested in specific colors we refer you to our named varieties. Everyone who visits our farms at blooming time and sees these fields of mixtures is impressed with their enchanting beauty and superb blending of colors.

GLORY MIXTURE

Kunderd's Glory Mixture is generally acknowledged as the leader among popular gladiolus mixtures. It contains a very well balanced assortment of the choicest of the large flowering, plain and ruffled petaled types of gladioli. Every color and hue is blended together giving a pageant of glorious colors and making as nearly as possible the perfect mixture.

10 bulbs 50c, 25 bulbs $1.00, 100 bulbs $3.00,
1000 bulbs $22.00

April 30, 1936

It must have been five or six years ago that I sent you my first order for bulbs; I am happy to say that they are still producing and strange as it seems to neighbors, they retain their brilliancy, size and colors.

MAUD K. THOMAS,
Boston, Mass.

I am very happy to tell you that your Gladiolus have been very satisfactory. In fact, many of my friends have spoken very highly of them. The varieties are many and the colors and blends are beautiful.

LESLIE T. BOLTON,
Hartford, Conn.

BABY GLAD MIXTURE

Only the small type gladioli will be found in the "Baby Glad Mixture." There are both the upright type, that is, those whose blooms are upright as in the upright lilies; and the laciniated kinds, those whose petals are laciniated or cut edged, and a few of the very small primulinus. These interesting miniature gladiolus are really different. They are most valuable for dainty decorative purposes and delightful when used in rockery, border plantings, etc.

10 bulbs 50c, 25 bulbs $1.00,
100 bulbs $3.00,
1000 bulbs $20.00

November 1, 1936

Last year I exhibited some very outstanding gladiolus in this city and everyone who saw them and knows anything about flowers and growers, immediately would exclaim, "you must have gotten your bulbs from Kunderd." So naturally I am very anxious to get some even better bulbs this year.

MRS. J. M. LAMB,
Houston, Texas.

Please send as soon as weather permits 50 Gladiolus Corms of your Wonder Mixture. If they prove to be as lovely as the ones I got from you last year, I shall have a thrill every morning in July and August when I rush out to see what new beauty has unfolded during the night. I plant the corms early (Easter week, 1935) as our season is a short one. My Gladioli were greatly admired last year. "Loella" seemed to be a special favorite. It was so unusual. Last season I regretted that I had not asked the Government for a permit for a larger number so this year I was determined to be on the safe side as you will notice.

LARKSPUR, Giant Imperial White King

Without any question the finest Giant Imperial Larkspur developed since 1930. The flowers are a pure glistening white with rounded, broad petals. The extremely large florets are fully double, measuring as much as 2 inches across and are evenly and closely spaced on the stem giving a very heavy Hollyhock-like cutting spike from 24 to 30 inches long. While the plants grow tall under favorable conditions they frequently grow over 5 feet, and are of the true Giant Imperial basal branching type upright in habit. Usually blooms a week earlier than the other Giant Imperial varieties. Destined to become the outstanding white Larkspur of the decade.

Where the Mammoth Blue Morning Glory is known, Clark's strain will need no introduction. It is the earliest flowering variety, making a sparse growth of foliage and is heavily covered with flowers. The color is the same beautiful sky-blue as that found in Heavenly Blue Improved, but the throat shades a golden yellow in this strain rather than white. The flowers do not remain open as long as in the Heavenly Blue Improved strain and are somewhat smaller.
